Since Time his rounds began, There's one I pity every day— Earth's first and foremost man; Just think of all the fun he missed

He never stubbed his naked toe Against a root or stone. He never with a pin-hook fished For minnows all alone. Among the daisies coy,

He never hookey played, nor tied bright and shining pall

His pleasure to destroy No slipper interfered Because-he never was a boy.

He might remember splendid times In Eden's bowers-yet He never acted Romeo To a six year Juliet

Because he never was a boy. He never cut a kite string, no,

Ha never spoiled his pantaloons A playin' mumbley-peg. He never from the attic stole A 'coon hunt to enjoy, For he never was a boy.

I pity him why should I not? even drop a tear; He never knew how much he missed He never will, I fear, And always when those dear old days My memories employ. I pity him, earth's only man
